

Clubhouse with new porch over the lower deck.

The fruits of our labor are exhibited in our clubhouse today.

house addition was too good to be used any longer for winter storage of hauling machinery. For the Winch House project the Club hired a Contractor only to pour the floor and foundation walls. "Work or Pay" kicked in to do all of the rest of the work.

As a brief concluding comment on the physical building of the Club; Yes, it is true that we started with a bigger piece of property than most yacht clubs, and it has always been a storage facility, even with taking that into consideration... we have built an awful lot of stuff on a very small budget.

This description of the past 50 years of activity at the Club has been mostly of development and of work. This is probably because it is is derived from Meeting Notes and Bulletins, and they consist of mostly money or work problems. We do not have reference journals for fun or for boating (and after all, this is a Family oriented publication) but we do have lots of photographs of some of our good times. Here are some of our best from over the years.
